One of the reasons for the success of "Along the Kennebec" which comes to the opera house next Saturday afternoon and evening is its peculiar quality of attracting people who are not classed among the regular theatre goers and there is something in the title which seems to appeal to this class of people, and after witnessing the performance they become the best advertisers, as the play is devoid of any pausing features and leaves a pleasant impression everywhere and return dates for it are eagerly sought. The fine band and orchestra carried by this attraction adds greatly to its entertaining features.

This city will be one of the few places in New England to be included in the brief road tour that David Belasco has arranged for his star, David Warfield, in the new play "A Grand Army Man," which will have an early presentation at the local playhouse. "A Grand Army Man" was written by David Belasco and Misses Phelps and Short, and is admirably suited to the distinctive art that David Warfield has recently displayed. The play is said to be vitelized with intense human interest, and presents a vivid and charming picture of a delightful period in American history—two decades after the Civil War. At the opera house next Tuesday evening.

Every careful dresser in Barre and surrounding towns should avail themselves of the opportunity of attending the great clothing exhibition which will take place at A. A.
